PANTHERS ENTERTAINMENT

The Carolina Panthers Entertainment teams will be putting on spectacular holiday performance for halftime with a special entrance from Sir Purr!

SERIES & CONNECTIONS

The Panthers (5-9) will host the Lions (7-7) in the regular season home finale on Saturday with a lot on the line.

Carolina needs to bounce back from last week's performance against the Steelers as they still have an opportunity to win out for the NFC South title.

Detroit comes in after winning six of its last seven with their own playoff aspirations.

STATS TO WATCH

by Will Bryan

Christmas Eve Weather

Saturday marks the eighth time that the Panthers have played on Christmas Eve, posting a record of 3-4. In the last instance in 2017, Carolina beat Tampa Bay in dramatic fashion to secure a playoff spot.

With temperatures hovering around freezing, the game could enter the team's record books for game-time temperature. The coldest home game on record was 30 degrees on 1/3/10 against the Saints. Any temperature below freezing would be a Top 10 coldest game.

The coldest Panthers game ever continues to be the 1996 NFC Championship in Green Bay with a game-time temperature of 3 degrees and wind chills far below 0.

Protecting the ball

Two weeks ago, Carolina won the turnover battle, 2-0, in the win at Seattle. The Panthers have not turned it over in four of the team's five wins and not thrown an interception in any of the five wins. They've thrown 10 interceptions in the nine losses.

Foreman moving

Since becoming the starter in Week 7, D'Onta Foreman has had a strong collection of rushing performances.

Since then, he's had four 100-yard rushing games, tied for the most in the NFL with Josh Jacobs.

Since Week 7, Foreman has averaged 108.8 rushing yards in four wins and 43.5 rushing yards in four losses.

Offensive line play

As a team, the Panthers have a pass blocking grade of 73.8 (according to PFF), ranking sixth in the NFL.

Since Week 6, Carolina has only allowed 15 sacks, tied for fifth in the league over that stretch.

Since Week 4, rookie Ikem Ekwonu has the second-best pass blocking grade of any rookie lineman (80.8), allowing just one sack.

Jaycee Horn shutting it down

Jaycee Horn made his third interception of the season at Seattle. According to PFF, he's allowed a 39.4 passer rating when targeted, the lowest among qualified cornerbacks this season.

Burns reaches double figures in sacks

Brian Burns has double digits in sacks (10.5) for the first time in his career, tied for 10th in the NFL. Burns' 24.5 total stops (sacks + TFLs) behind the line are second-most through Week 15 in since TFL stats were kept in 2000.

Luvu back in force

After missing playing time with an injury, Frankie Luvu was back in full force the last five games. Since Week 10, he's the only player in the NFL with at least 5.0 sacks and 40-plus tackles.

Brown breaks the record

Derrick Brown tied his career high with tackles on Sunday against the Steelers. He now has 56 tackles on the season, passing Kawann Short (55, 2015/16) for the most by a Panthers defensive tackle in a single season.

Hekker inside the 20

Johnny Hekker continues to give Carolina an edge through the punt game. His 44.3 net yards per punt rank fourth in the NFL, while his 30 punts inside the 20 are third.

2022 Statistical Milestones to Watch

Brian Burns (10.5) needs five sacks to pass Kevin Greene (1998) and Greg Hardy (2013)'s franchise record (15.0) for the most sacks in a season

Burns (14) needs seven tackles for loss to pass Luke Kuechly (20, 2018) for the franchise record in a single season.

Burns (24.5) needs eight tackles for loss or sacks to pass Greg Hardy (32, 2013) for most combined TFL/sacks in a season in franchise history

DJ Moore needs 322 receiving yards for his fourth consecutive 1,000-yard receiving season

Derrick Brown (14) needs five pass deflections to pass Julius Peppers (18) for the most by a Panthers defensive lineman in his first three seasons.

Shaq Thompson (110) needs five tackles to pass his previous career high (114, 2020).

Johnny Hekker (30) needs six punts inside the 20 to pass Todd Sauerbrun (35, 2001) for the franchise record.

PREPARING FOR COLD

by Darin Gantt

CHARLOTTE — D'Onta Foreman felt it Tuesday when his hands grew cold and numb during a late December practice. He said that hits feel different in the frigid air, and playing football is rougher on his hands when it isn't warm anymore.

"That hurts so bad," Foreman, a native Texan, said. "It's just a weird feeling. ... That's the difference."

It was 41 degrees and cloudy in Charlotte, almost toasty compared to plenty of other NFL cities around this time of year. The Browns expect snow showers and 13-degree weather for their game against New Orleans on Saturday.

Still, the Panthers brought heaters out onto the practice field, and players frequented the sidelines to place their hands and heads in front of it, with safety Myles Hartsfield filling his helmet with hot air at one point between reps.

They're going to have to get used to it, though, because Saturday's matchup with the Lions could be the coldest home game in the Panthers' history. Forecasts predict potential high temperatures in the low 30s, with wind chills dipping below 20 degrees.

The coldest game at Bank of America Stadium kicked off at 30 degrees when the Panthers played the Saints on Jan. 3, 2010.

And Tuesday wasn't even as chilly as the weekend's forecast, so interim coach Steve Wilks saw no issue with opting to practice outdoors.

"Last I've checked, the Bank of America (Stadium) doesn't have a dome," Wilks said. "We've got to be outside, so that's the reason why we were out there today."

Some players didn't let the cold affect what they wore outside. DJ Moore, Shi Smith, Austin Corbett, and Chuba Hubbard were among the Panthers who still wore shorts in the chilly conditions, along with offensive coordinator Ben McAdoo.

It makes sense for the Canadian Hubbard because it's minus 21 degrees in his native Edmonton, Alberta, Canada. Northern Alberta is under an extreme cold warning because wind chills are dipping into minus 40 and colder.

So no, it isn't as bad in North Carolina. But it's still smart to prepare for it.

Safety Sam Franklin Jr. went to college at Temple in Philadelphia and said he could deal with the cold. He knows how to use the heater to keep his gloves, helmet, and jacket warm for when he's on the sidelines.

Franklin said he wouldn't be wearing sleeves Saturday. Instead, he'll lather his skin in a "special concoction" that keeps him warm throughout the game.

"I'll put on my go-go juice, and I'll be fine," Franklin said. "That's what I did when we played in Buffalo last year; did that, I played (in) no sleeves. ... It's more of a mental thing if you ask me. If you don't really think about the cold, you're not going to get a cold."

Kicker Eddy Piñeiro, a Florida native who previously played in Chicago, knows a thing or two about how temperatures can change the kicking game.

Piñeiro said the football "feels like a rock" in the cold because it hardens up and doesn't travel the same way as it does when the weather is warmer.

"It's the same technique; (the) ball's probably not going to go as far or as high," Piñeiro said. "Usually, when you kick in the cold, it doesn't go as high or as far. But as far as practicing, it's pretty much keeping it the same and hoping it gets warmer."

Wilks has often said he tells the team not to concern themselves with "it" — whether "it" is noise from outside commentary or uncontrollable factors like the weather.

Plus, they have played in a cold weather game this year. It was 36 degrees with a wind chill of 26 at kickoff time in Baltimore a few weeks ago.

"We don't let 'it' get in the way," Wilks said. "We went to Baltimore, and it was pretty cold up there. I felt like we endured that and played a pretty good game. Didn't come away with a win, but the weather is not an issue."

Heaters will be running on the sideline, and fans should bundle up for the last home game of the regular season. Though not everyone loves dealing with the cold weather that could set a franchise record, Foreman, who admitted he'd prefer to play in heat over cold, isn't dreading Saturday.

"It's football weather, definitely in December," Foreman said. "Looking forward to it. It should be a good one."

TOPCATS™

ANNALISE

Year: 7

Hometown: Jacksonville, NC

There are only a handful of things that Annalise loves more than Rhianna and Justin Bieber, and that is her love for Panther Fans and the Junior TopCats program. She has been dancing since the age of three, was a level 7 gymnast, and competed in dance for several years. In college, she double-majored in Public Health education and dance and was on the Spartan G's dance team at UNC-Greensboro. Now, she puts her double-stuffed major to work everyday as the dance teacher at a local elementary school.

As a seventh-year veteran, Annalise is well-seasoned (like her favorite food, popcorn!) with the knowledge and opportunities of a TopCat. She has performed with countless halftime artists, traveled to Africa to perform for our troops, represented our team at the 2020 Pro Bowl, and cheered on our organization at Super Bowl 50. But she will tell you that the Salute to Service game means the world to her every year. "Coming from a long line of military men and women on both sides of my family, that game hits home. My great grandfather was in the 82nd Airborne and Green Beret so watching them jump and land on the field last season was so special. I never have dry eyes during that game. It is the most genuine reminder of how special our country is and the eternal gratitude I have for the men and women who have fought, continue to fight and will fight in the future to protect each and every one of us."

ASHLEY

Year: 3

Hometown: Belmont, NC

A few things that would surprise you about Ashley is that she is extremely camera shy, she listens to the same song every time she comes to the stadium, and regardless of being a big Harry Potter Series fan—she does not enjoy reading books. She graduated from UNC -

Charlotte with a bachelor's degree in sociology and was a member of the Gold Dusters dance team. Outside of being a dog mom and a TopCat, she is a fourth-grade teacher who believes in the power of education. "I support a charity called Communities in Schools because I know that education is the way to a successful adult life. There are so many challenges students face that keep them from access to a good education and CIS is designed to help students overcome challenges in their home life to be successful in school."

But Ashley also knows the importance of a good support system to accomplish your goals. If you ask her, she will tell you that she thinks her teammates would identify her as the jokester on the team, but an endless source of joy and laughter and authenticity is more likely to describe her. But she couldn't be our support without one of her own, "I would like to thank my mom and my dad. We faced a lot of battles and struggles during my childhood, but they never let me stop dancing and doing what I love to do. Because of that I am now a TopCat which is something I never thought I could accomplish."

PEYTON

Year: 1

Hometown: Grand Rapids, MI

As a first year TopCat from the North, Peyton wants to be sure that Panther Nation knows “that although I’m not from Carolina - I’m ready to cheer on the Panthers with my whole heart! They should also know that I love people - so never hesitate to come up to me and talk to me about Panthers, cheer, or anything at all!” Her dance journey started with competition teams and studio dance from ages 3-18, while she also danced on her high school’s dance team all 4 years. From there her passion continued while she attended Davenport University as a member of their dance team—PantherPack—where she was a 2X NDA National Champion. After graduating with a Bachelor’s Degree in Business and a specialty in Advertising and Promotions she was a dancer for the Grand Rapids Drive (now known as the Grand Rapids Gold) Semi-pro G-league NBA Team.

But why the TopCats? “I wanted to be a TopCat for a few reasons. Junior TopCats is some kid’s first impression of dance and can be make or break for their dance journey - which for me has been life changing. I want to raise the next generation to have a positive attitude and outlook on themselves and what dance can do for them. The Unfiltered campaign also showed the authenticity of both the Panthers organization and the TopCats as a team. The authenticity was solidified after talking to alumni and throughout the audition process. When I received the phone call stating that I had made the team. It was such a special moment in my dance career to feel like hard work and perseverance was worth it.”

KACY

Year: 5

Hometown: Trinity, NC

Kacy is our bag of tricks on the team—she built her own college major, drove across the country for 2 months straight, was a semi-finalist on So You Think You Can Dance, is a semi-auctioneer, and is always down for an adventure. She stepped into her first dance class at 18 months old, danced competitively for 15 years and was a yearly convention dance scholar taking class from the West Coast to the East Coast and everywhere in between. In college, she was a member of the Carolina Girls Dance Team at the University of South Carolina, as well as the High Point University Dance team where she was captain.

But second year Captain, Kacy, has been a Panthers fan for as long as she can remember. “One of my favorite memories was the Hall of Honor Induction Ceremony. Getting to share the field with such Panthers legends was a moment that will forever be imprinted on me. I grew up watching Steve Smith and Jake Delhomme every Sunday and watching them be inducted into our Hall of Honor just mere feet away from me was this little girl’s dream come true. I would love the opportunity to thank my Bobba. He was the biggest Panthers fan and always told me he would be watching me on that field someday. Although he wasn’t here to see that happen in person, I know how proud he is to see me living my dream! He never doubted my abilities and for that, I am forever grateful.”

NORA

Year: 7

Hometown: Concord, NC

If you looked up the word dedicated in the dictionary, you would find a photo of our 4th year veteran, Nora. She is constantly trying to be the best she can be in every avenue of her life—whether it is being the best dance teacher for her students, a supportive wife, the most loving daughter or the best teammate, she strives to always be there and work hard for those that she loves and cares about and this team has become an extension of her family. “As an only child, I had always wanted a brother or sister and this organization gave me the best 29 sisters and brothers. Having these people share the passion for dance as well as helping their community is the best feeling in the world. There are not many times in life where you get to be with like-minded people who share the same love for something, and that to me is priceless.”

Community is another aspect of Nora’s life that she pours everything into. She is a huge supporter of Block Love CLT—a local charity in Charlotte that serves meals twice a day on the streets to those who are in need. “No matter if it is raining or snowing, they are out there serving their community, and you can’t deny their passion to help. They also provide clothing, hygiene packages, as well as helping those get back on their feet to start over. This organization was built from the ground up by the passion of Deborah Woolard to help those who are not as fortunate, which makes this such a special charity to give to support.”

REGAN

Year: 1

Hometown: Lexington, SC

Regan may be in her first season as a TopCat, but she is not new to the world of performing. Since she was little, she has dreamed of pursuing a professional dance career. She started her dance career at a local studio in her hometown and was immediately set on the path of entertainment. She cheered in middle and high school and spent four years dancing for River Bluff Dance Company. While obtaining a Bachelor's Degree in psychology with a Minor in Public Health, she spent time on the Carolina Girls Dance Team at the University of South Carolina, as well as one season cheering for the Jacksonville Jaguars as a member of The Roar.

Your rookie season is really one you will never forget. "Growing up down the road in South Carolina, the Panthers have been my home team. Every program upholds different standards and values. After following the TopCats on Instagram and participating in the audition process, I knew this team was unique. Everyone was so supportive and loving of one another, help was graciously given, and each person in that room wanted the person beside them to succeed. The Carolina Panthers Organization and TopCats program is representative of so many positive qualities. A team should be your second family, which was what I was looking for and thankfully found."

MORGAN

Year: 4

Hometown: Mooresville, NC

Every team has one person who can fall asleep any and everywhere, and Morgan is absolutely one of ours—which makes it ironic that breakfast is her favorite meal. Combine her love for breakfast with the world's biggest, sweet tooth and you have sugar grits, ask her about it sometime.

She has a Bachelors in Exercise Sport Science with Minors in both Biology and Spanish from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, where she was also a 4-year member of their dance team. She is currently working to obtain her Master of Science in Occupational Therapy from Winston-Salem State University and is in the midst of her clinical rotation. She enjoys working with children and seeing them grow, “not only as dancers but as compassionate, hardworking, and confident individuals.”

Morgan is the oldest of three, and both her brother and sister are professional dancers. “Without my parents support and sacrifice, neither myself nor my siblings would be where we are today in our dance careers. They made sure we were given every opportunity to pursue our passion regardless of how it impacted their lives. There are not enough words to thank them both for the love and support they provided throughout the years with all the rehearsals, competitions, long drives, late nights working on costumes, wins, losses, tears, and laughter.”
